

SEP 28 1956

NEW YORK TIMES

X

President's Advisers to Rush Foreign Aid Plan

President Eisenhower seated at White House yesterday with Benjamin F. Fairless, right, chairman, and John L. Lewis. Other members standing, from left, are Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, Richard R. Deupree, Jesse W. Tapp, Colgate W. Darden Jr. and Whitelaw Reid.

Associated Press Wirephoto

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) —President Eisenhower asked a special study committee today to report to him by March 1 with recommendations on future foreign aid policies.

He met in his office with the seven-member committee, known as the President's Citizen Advisers on the Mutual Security Program. It is headed by Benjamin F. Fairless, former United States Steel board chairman.

Mr. Fairless said the committee would go to work immediately because "all of us have a lot of work to do in the next few months." The committee will make a preliminary report by Dec. 1, he added. He said he assumed the President set the March 1 date to enable the Administration to present its new foreign aid program to Congress about that time.